

This is a comprehensive map of Kenya, illustrating its administrative divisions into counties. The map uses a color-coded system to distinguish between different regions: North Rift (pink), Central Highlands (green), Western Highlands (light green), Coastal (blue), and Southern (orange). Major urban centers are indicated by black dots, while smaller towns and villages are shown as open circles. A network of roads is depicted with orange lines, labeled with their respective numbers (e.g., A1, B71, B80). Significant geographical features include Lake Turkana in the north, Lake Naivasha in the central-western part, and the Indian Ocean coastline to the east and south. Neighboring countries—Ethiopia to the north, Uganda to the west, Somalia to the east, and Tanzania to the south—are also labeled. The capital city, Nairobi, is prominently marked with a red star in the central region. Other notable locations include Mombasa on the coast, Marsabit in the north-central area, and various border points and smaller lakes throughout the country.
