

A detailed map of North Dakota, showing its 53 counties. The map is color-coded by county: blue for the northernmost counties, green for the central and southern counties, and orange for the eastern counties. Major cities are marked with black dots and labeled. The state capital, Bismarck, is marked with a red star. The map also shows the state's borders with Minnesota to the east and South Dakota to the south. The Great Plains region is visible, with the Missouri River forming the border with South Dakota. The map includes the names of the counties, major cities, and the state capital.
