

This map illustrates the Occitania region in France, highlighting its major urban centers, transportation networks, and geographical context. The region is bordered by Nova Aquitânia to the west, Auvérnia-Ródano-Alpes to the east, and Espanha to the south. The map features a color-coded system: orange for major urban areas, green for rural or forested land, and blue for water bodies. Major cities are marked with black dots, while smaller towns are indicated by open circles. A network of roads is shown, with orange lines representing major highways (A, N, and A63) and yellow lines for secondary roads. The Garonne river is a prominent feature, flowing through the central part of the region. The map also shows the proximity to neighboring regions like Auvergne-Rhône-Alpes and the Mediterranean Sea.